ISTHMIAN CANAL AFFAIRS.

TITLE SUPPOSED TO BE GOOD.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A gentleman intimately connected with the isthmian canal affairs, said to a Times reporter today: "I cannot say it officially, but I can say it as a matter of general official knowledge, that Atty.-Gen. Knox will this week or next file with President Roosevelt his report upon his investigation into the legality of the title that the Panama Canal Company proposed to turn over to the United States for $40,000,000, and I can say that the general understanding among the officials of the Department of Justice and among men interested in an official way with the construction of this canal, is that Mr. Knox will be satisfied in saying that the title to the Panama Canal property is absolutely good, for the purposes of this government, and that he will virtually recommend its purchase at the price at which it has been offered. I do not believe that there is the slightest doubt about this matter."

Mr. Knox today had a conference with the President about canal affairs, after which he said he was hard at work upon his report, and expected to be able to file it with the President within a few days.

TREATY AND COMMISSION.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mr. Cramm, counsel for the Panama company, is in Washington on business connected with the canal enterprise. When the way is open for the President to take up the next step, it will be the submission to the Senate of a treaty covering the whole ground, and authorizing the United States to proceed with the work of construction. A treaty will be ready for submission soon after the Senate recesses, but it is probable that ratification may not be again for any length of time. The inability of the Riggs to agree on a policy for bettering the conditions of the islands is expected to be a factor in again forcing the sale question to a new issue. The result of today's vote was doubtful until the last moment. One member had not taken a definite stand, and it was uncertain whether two sick members would be able to attend. The cabinet held a meeting immediately after the rejection of the bill, and it was agreed that the action of the Landthing did not necessitate their resignation.

TRADE WITH CUBA.

EFFORTS TO INCREASE IT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Representatives of the Merchants' Association of New York are in the city for the purpose of conferring with administration officials in regard to Cuban affairs. They are H. D. Dumont and S. Christy. Mr. Dumont intends to visit Cuba in order to make a canvass of the island and find out what trade opportunities are offered. The Merchants' Association proposes to gather information obtainable on this question, so as to benefit its members who are interested in trade with Cuba. One of the things that are to be inquired into is reciprocity, and it is likely that certain recommendations will be made to Congress by the Merchants' Association as a result of the visit of Dumont.

ISLANDERS UNDEMONSTRATIVE.

ST. THOMAS (D. W. I.) Oct. 22.—The news of the rejection today by the Danish Landthing of the treaty providing for the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States has been received in St. Thomas, and up to the present writing there has been no popular expression of feeling or demonstration. The local press has not yet commented on the matter. A large section of the population of the island is greatly disappointed that its hopes of prosperity have been shattered. A smaller, but strong section of the islanders is jubilant and hopes for a renewal of prosperity under the old flag and with the aid of the motherland.

WASHINGTON NOT SURPRISED.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The State Department was today advised of the action of the Landthing in rejecting the treaty of cession. The action caused little surprise, for, as already indicated in these dispatches, the advice received from Copenhagen indicated that if the treaty could be brought to vote before one or two members of the Landthing, who were

GOOD OLD VICTORY.

Republicans Sure to Win It.

Secretary Moody's View of the Situation.

Party Will Gain Congressmen in the West.

Now That the Coal Strike is Settled Popular Interest Is Reviving.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Secretary of the Navy Moody, who has been on a political trip through the Middle West, has returned to Washington, and says the Republicans are going to win a fine old victory this fall, in spite of the general dullness of the campaign. Secretary Moody says: "I have no indications which, in my judgment, point to a reversal for the Republicans. My observations were often brief, but from all I could gather we should retain a good majority in the next House of Representatives. I was in Iowa three days, and I look bright there for the Republicans. In Nebraska, the Republicans are expecting an increase of their representation, the delegation now consisting of only two Republicans. Mr. Mercer is opposed by a faction of his party in Omaha, but he also has strong support from many of the most representative men of the city, and will, in all probability, be re-elected. At least, that is my judgment, after all I could learn about the situation. I was in Pennsylvania only one day, and have less personal information about that State, but in the West, I believe we shall not only hold our own, but may gain a few members here and there."

"What about the Iowa idea of tariff revision?"

"Nothing in it," responded the Secretary promptly. "Nothing in it. There are some people in Iowa who believe certain schedules should be revised. They would reduce the tariff in such cases to suit the exigencies. Others think the tariff well enough as it is, but all Iowa Republicans are loyal to protection, and when the tariff is revised they want it done along protection lines. They want the work done by Republicans."

"Are the voters paying much attention to politics?"

"There has been considerable indifference to the campaign in the West," was the answer. "But I do not interpret that as having an unfavorable aspect for Republicans. In Iowa, the coal strike has overshadowed politics. Whether or not the strike affected the campaign out there, there was a great deal of talk about it. Few con-

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Republican campaign is in full swing, and the great strength of the party of Prosperity and Progress is becoming more apparent daily. The tide of drift toward the Republican ticket which always marks the closing two weeks of the canvass has already set in. In the minds of the best-informed politicians there no longer remains any doubt as to the outcome of the election.

At the opening of the canvass, every member of the Republican party with either a real or imaginary grievance against the present administration is being stirred up. The disgruntled have had their growl, and most of them are now loud in their encomiums of their party. The drift toward Pardee, and the whole Republican ticket, and there are wise men who predict an avalanche of Republican votes on election day. The country never has been in doubt, and may be relied upon to roll up its usual majority for the Republican ticket.

Los Angeles county, the banner south-western county, is expected to roll up to roll up a bigger Republican majority than ever before, owing to the increase of the Republican vote in the county. The opinion of well-informed politicians, may be relied upon to roll up a bigger Republican majority than ever before, owing to the increase of the Republican vote in the county. The opinion of well-informed politicians, may be relied upon to roll up a bigger Republican majority than ever before, owing to the increase of the Republican vote in the county.

The following bet, which leaked today, is significant: Early in the canvass two politicians, with special opportunities for securing information as to the situation, met at the Palace Hotel one evening. One was a Democrat, who predicted an avalanche of Republican votes on election day. The other was a Republican, who predicted a similar result. The Democrat offered to wager $1000 that Lane would carry San Francisco by a majority. The Republican immediately accepted the bet. The Democrat apparently did not feel his bet was such a good thing, for he immediately bet $1000 that Pardee would carry the State. The Republican, being of the same mind, of course, did not take the bet. The Democrat, however, has not been able to get away from this bet since, and is now a nervous wreck.

VINDICATING HIMSELF.

O'DELL SCORES HILL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The State political campaign assumed a bitter tone today. O'Dell, who had been accused of having been a Republican, today vindicated himself by declaring that he had been a Republican all his life.

Ill. had so far recovered as to be able to attend the session, it would be possible to pass the measure. From the press account of the vote, it appears that one of these ill members unexpectedly appeared and turned the tide. Assuming that today's session is final for the present session, the officials here are disposed to view the situation philosophically, resting in the belief that it will only be a short time before Denmark will tire of making good a deficit in the revenue of the islands and let us have them.

ANOTHER TREATY NECESSARY.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.]
WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—It is probable, in view of the closeness of the vote in the Landsting, that the Danish government will decide to make another attempt to secure the approval of the treaty at a more auspicious time. This may be accomplished by the simple practice of negotiating with the United States government the amendment of the treaty, extending the time allowed for the exchange of the ratification of the original treaty. This could be done by Denmark without reference to the Rigsdag. But as the treaty has been ratified by the United States Senate, the amendment in our case necessarily would take the shape of a separate treaty, and would require approval by the Senate, as in the case of the original convention.

There is some reason to believe that a few Senators, how many cannot be told now, who were opposed to the cessation last session, but made no attempt to prevent ratification, of reluctance to break up the order of business at a critical moment, may now feel at liberty to oppose the amendment in case one were presented. This contingency is now under consideration.

THE SAMOAN IMBROGLIO.
DECIDED IN GERMANY'S FAVOR.
[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.]
WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—An intimation has been received here that the arbitration tribunal, acting as the arbitrator of the issues between the United States, Germany and Great Britain, growing out of the Samoan rebellion of 1899, will decide that the Samoan government is in the breach of its obligations, which have been pending for nearly a year, warranted him in proceeding to assess the damages sustained by foreign residents of Samoa as a result of the landing of a combined force of American and British sailors and marines and the destruction of property incident to the ensuing fight with the rebels. By the terms of the treaty under which the three powers agreed to submit these claims to arbitration, the arbitrator was first to declare whether the Americans and British were at all liable for damages, and if so he was to determine the amount of that liability. He has, it is understood, concluded to decide the first question in the affirmative, and has stated that no official notice to that effect has yet been conveyed to our government.

The next step is to fix the amount of the damages, and this must be done by King Oscar, on the basis of the facts now to be presented by the representatives of the governments concerned. The German claims are far larger than the others, amounting to $100,000, while the American claims, most of them British only $25,000. There are also small claims of nations not party to the arbitration, which may be included in the final judgment.

It is not the amount of money involved in this approaching decision of the arbitrator that is of chief importance to the United States, but rather the enunciation of a principle which, if accepted, would be a precedent to the governments concerned. RUSH ON DETECTIVES.

Prisoner Charged With Stealing Aided in Escaping, and Alleged Assault on Officers Arrested.

L. J. Meyers is a prisoner in the City Jail, charged with battery, but it is probable that a more serious charge will be preferred. He is said to be one of two men who assaulted two members of the detective force in front of Blanchard Hall last night, and released a prisoner.

Detectives Craig and Steele had arrested a young man, whose name has not been made public, on a charge of having stolen a watch. The arrest was made while a dance was in progress at Blanchard Hall. When the officers started away with their prisoner, they were set upon by two men. Craig was struck on the head and knocked almost to the street. At the same moment the two men rushed Steele and almost threw him. Taking advantage of the opportunity, the prisoner escaped.

The officers quickly recovered themselves and endeavored to hold their assailants, but in the excitement both grabbed the same man from the crowd which surrounded them, and the other assailant took to his heels. The officers took a shot at him, but were unable to catch him.

Meyers was handcuffed and taken to the station. If upon examination of the law, it is found that the penalty for trying to effect the escape or rescue of a prisoner is more severe than for battery, it is probable that the charge against him will be changed.

PUBLIC SERVICE.

AT THE COURT HOUSE.

BIG MURDER TRIAL WILL BEGIN TODAY.

YOUNG BOYD IS ACCUSED OF KILLING YEAGER.

He is Charged With Shooting a Gambler in the Bar of the Metropole Hotel at Catalina—He Accuses Johnson, His Friend.

Another big murder trial will come on for trial this morning. This is one that will be filled with heart interest and sentiment. It is the trial of young A. E. Boyd, charged with the killing of W. A. Yeager, a professional gambler, in the Hotel Metropole, Catalina.

The case has all the fascination of a detective story. Boyd and a young fellow named Harry Johnson, a professional gambler, were playing cards in the Metropole bar. Johnson went broke first and sat to one side, while Yeager and Boyd kept on playing. At last, Yeager won everything Boyd had. There was a shot, and Yeager leaned forward and died, with his head among the poker chips on the table, the cards still in his hands.

Either Johnson or Boyd killed him. Which was it? Johnson says Boyd; Boyd says Johnson. Johnson, however, has never been put under arrest. The officers fixed the guilt upon Boyd.

Johnson has described the killing by Boyd, but Boyd has been as discreet as a clam. A few minutes after the shooting, Johnson told the crowd that rushed into the barroom that Boyd did the killing. Boyd turned on him, demanding, "What? You say I did it?" That was all he said.

Since then it has come out that Johnson and Boyd had been going the place; had been playing poker together and had been "doing" a lot of young sports. The watch that Yeager won from Johnson had been, in turn, won by Johnson from a young fellow in Los Angeles, and had his sweetheart's picture in it.

Yeager had been playing cards in partnership with a fellow named Boggs. The two boys are alleged to have wheedled Boggs into a card game, and to have beaten him to death by playing into each other's hands. When Yeager heard of it, he proceeded to take his revenge. He skinned 'em alive.

One of the points of controversy in the case is the direction the fatal bullet took; he was shot twice. By means of the relative positions of the three men and the course of the bullet, it is supposed that it can be figured out who did the shooting.

The case will probably take ten days and will be followed by two other murder trials—Charles Temple, who shot a man at San Gabriel, and Pedro Morales, the Mexican desperado.

DEGENERATE SENTENCED.

PARK PROWLER CAUGHT.

M. M. Mead, one of the old degenerates who hang around the city parks at night, was sentenced to the County Jail for six months yesterday for stabbing one of the police stout pigeons set to watch and trap him—a young fellow named George Thomas. Mead put up a defense in Judge Smith's court, but the jury returned a verdict against him. Judge Smith decided to send him to jail instead of State prison, on account of the man's pitiful physical condition.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

NO EVIDENCE FOUND AGAINST BRUMMUND.

HEALTH OFFICE FAILED TO CONVINCE DR. WATSON.

No Case Made Against Landlord Endi, Who Used Poisonous Gas to Kill Bugs. Ed Synan Makes History—Tom Kelly Was Two Hours in Town.

The arrest of W. F. Brummund on a charge of burglary was evidently a great wrong to an innocent man. He was a man of good character, and his arrest was a disgrace to the police. He was held in the City Jail, where he was treated with contempt. He was released after two hours, and he was never charged with a crime.

No stolen property was found in his possession, and it required a great deal of theorizing in any way connect Brummund with the burglarizing of Fred Nichols's house.

The house was for rent, and among those who went to look at it were Brummund and his wife, which fact was known to Nichols, and detectives were sent to search his effects. Among the articles lost by Nichols were a razor and a pair of shoes. In the room occupied by Brummund were found a razor, a pair of shoes, and nothing like them. The razor could not be at all identified by Nichols, and it was not included in the charge, but it was at once decided that as Brummund had a pair of bicycle shoes in his possession, he was the guilty party. The shoes were so small that the accused man could not get them on his feet, and it seemed preposterous to suppose that he had made such an exchange. One of the proprietors of the store said that Brummund was the man who had made the deal, but his partner, who had taken the customer in hand and completed the trade, could not identify him at all. As to the Acts Pleasantly.

Acts Beneficially.
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

Failed to Convince Dr. Watson.

Dr. C. P. V. Watson was yesterday tried before Justice Morgan on complaint of Health Officer Powers for failing to report a case of diphtheria in the family of F. M. Runkle, from which the patient died.

The accused physician was cleared on the strength of his own testimony that he had filed out the postal card, furnished by the Health Officer for the purpose, and given it to his wife to mail. Mrs. Watson testified that she had done so, and the attorney for the defense claimed that it had been "lost in the shuffle" of other papers.

Another case is pending against Dr. Watson for a like offense. In this case the accused demands a jury trial, and it was set for November 5.

The Bug-Killer Goes.

The District Attorney has declined to issue a complaint against Ed. Synan, proprietor of the Hotel Strasburg, for criminal carelessness in causing the death of Henry Keller, by the use of dangerous disinfectants to kill bugs.

The prosecuting attorney thinks it would be difficult to make a case against him, and his $700 bail money was returned.

Synan's Autobiography.

Ed. Synan is piling up history for his posterity. He was arrested on Thursday, sentenced on Friday, released on Monday, got drunk immediately, was gobbled on Tuesday and sent below on Wednesday and promised to sail for Santa Monica this morning on pain of doing five days on the chain gang.

Two Hours Freedom of the Town.

Tom Kelly, who was among a job lot of drunks in the Police Court yesterday, was a victim of hard luck. He had been in town just two hours, when he was landed by the police. He looked like a good one to hold, and was given five days.

Police Court Pickings.

C. Lamson, who jumped a bond bill at the Abbey, laid in jail from October 15 until yesterday, and then paid a fine of $10 upon being adjudged guilty of the charge by Justice Austin.

Otto Fall, who was arrested for violation of the curfew ordinance and has figured in the Police Court news for several days, was yesterday turned over to the McKimley Memorial Home at Artesia. This disposition of the case was brought about through the agency of Humane Officer Oliver.

Mal. Oliver tackled another problem yesterday. Arthur Lambert, aged 14, was picked up by Policemen Banks while loitering about Los Angeles street. He says he came from the Indian Territory with his brother, arriving here on Saturday night. The latter, he says, is 21 years of age and has gone to work at a grading camp.

SEA-SICK VISITORS SEE STREET FAIR.

SWAYING ON CAMELS' HUMPS MAKES 'EM DIZZY.

Woodmen's Carnival in Full Swing and Attractive—Japanese Acrobats Perform Wonderful Feats—Country Store Takes the Yokels' Easy Money.

The machinery of the Woodmen's Street Fair got itself going at full speed last night. Considering political and other attractions a very fair-sized crowd went to see the mysteries of the show. It is hard to estimate a number gathered on so large a ground as Fiesta Park, but the seats in front of the stage were comfortably filled, and many others were "doing" the various exhibits strewn about the place.

When you cut the hootchey-cootchey part out of the hootchey-cootchey dance there isn't very much left. That was the case last night. Probably the performers wanted to start easy, and find out first whether they were in a good town. The ladies were satisfied, and thought there was nothing so very bad in it after all; the men were well, of course, they had to be satisfied.

As human wonders the Japanese acrobats stand out supreme. The rest of the show pales into insignificance beside the impossible athletic accomplishments of these little brown men and women. They seem no more tired when, through that when they commenced, and all through dangerous feats of strength and skill which would appall most stage performers they are as fearless and as easily graceful as though quietly drinking tea in one of their native tea-houses. The rest of the performance includes the Arabian jugglers, Turkish dervishes, trapeze performers, and a company of seven women tumblers, who are certainly very good in their line. There is the usual accompaniment of clowns and fun-makers, more or less original, and occasionally humorous.

The merchants' exhibit section has not been filled up, but several very creditable displays are in place. The country store is busily "skinning" the "easy" yokels, and with its stock of calicoes, flannel neckties and cotton socks, bids fair to revolutionize fashion for the time being. The "bicycle" court and its justices were kept busy last evening. Once in jail the erring ones had to stay the allotted number of hours or minutes, as the walls are very secure and will not allow escape of any sort. One timid young man, all covered with a huge tin snail, dragged a burly culprit before the august judge to receive sentence, which was pronounced as twenty-five minutes in durance vile. They started out, but when once beyond seeing distance the captive miffily shook off his jailer, with a placid "Aw, quit it, fooling!" The young officer begged his late prisoner's pardon, while the latter rejoined his friends.

The number of persons who got snatched on the backs of the camels is beyond estimate. They were the same who had their hands read and their fortunes told.

The voting contest for the Carnival Queen is going right along, with Miss Nellie Linscomb in the lead, with 280 votes. Miss Laura M. Phillips is second with 162.

The arrangement of the grounds speaks well for the industry of the management. The dust has been well settled, the earth smoothed, and all put in good shape under foot. For a large place the lighting is good, much better, indeed, than that at the "Wild West" shows.

NOVELIST'S imagination over conjure up a political leader like Littlefield of Maine, who is the most peculiar person for all the great stump speaker might be called the trip-hammer.

Photographers tear their hair when they hear his speeches. He is so hard to get a picture of that he is called the trip-hammer.

He makes such curious things of the way he talks: "There is that ap—pals—the ord—inary—born—born—that way."

He says, "On—ions, that's a trip-hammer where you see the trip-hammer, where you see the trip-hammer, where you see the trip-hammer."

LITTLEFIELD'S GREAT SPEECH AND BIG REPUBLICAN WAKEUP.

my friends on the other side suggest that I have been imported for that purpose, but there is no such thing as an import between these States, because this is one country, and one land and one people, and governed by one law. I want to say to you here tonight that I am in a part of that common country, and I am as much at home in this Golden State although this is the first time my feet ever trod its soil, as I would be tonight on my native heath in the State of Maine, in the city of Rockland, where I live. And there is no place in this broad land where American people live, and where industries exist, and where possibilities are, that the policies of the Republican party and its intelligent apprehension do not go to look out for them wherever they may be. [Applause.]

And what concerns Maine in this campaign concerns California, and what concerns California concerns Maine, because the policies of the Republican party are not local in their application. They are cosmopolitan in their character, and the same political gospel that is preached today in the State of Maine or in Vermont or in Massachusetts or in Pennsylvania, or in Ohio or Iowa, is preached today in the State of California, without any variations, neither shadow that is cast by turning. And I preach this gospel from the easternmost boundaries of this great republic in this very campaign until I reach its westernmost limit on the calm shores of this Pacific Maine, and there is no speech that I have made anywhere in any town in far-off Maine or in busy Massachusetts or in thriving Pennsylvania, or in agricultural Iowa that could not be made upon this platform to this people, and concern their interests and their welfare just as much as it concerns the interests and the welfare that I have been addressing.

And now that can't be said as you will see as I go on, of the policies or the lack of policy of our friends upon the other side. Now, whoever believes in this campaign in the maintenance and perpetuation in the policies of the Republican party must in the first instance vote for Republican members of Congress. Now why? Not because there may not be in this campaign a very marked distinction between the candidates on either side in the policies they preach.

HAVE STOLEN LION'S SKIN.

I have noticed since I have reached this State that there is no Democratic candidate for Congress that does not preach the policy which ever he may be of the protection of the industry of the locality where he happens to be making his speech, and largely, and as a whole, the protection of the interests of the agricultural, industrial and other interests of the State of California. That is exactly what the Republican members of Congress preach, but our Democratic friends in this campaign have stolen the lion skin and they are vibrating about in it. [Laughter.] They do not feel entirely at home in it, to be sure, but they are vibrating about in it in this campaign, trying to make the people believe that they, too, stand for the protection of the industries of California.

It is the two great parties that will determine the policy of this country in the lines I have been discussing, and as to that policy I want to say just a few words of a practical nature.

The Ways and Means Committee is appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and that Speaker is elected by the majority of the House. If by any inadvertence or mistake this intelligent people in California, believing that these Democratic candidates were protectionists for California and not elsewhere, that were willing to look out for the industries in this State and were proceeding upon that broad idea that you could get protection in California irrespective of what the result might be elsewhere, proceeding upon the theory of that very religious old gentleman in my town, who put up this succinct but very narrow prayer, "Oh, Lord, bless me and my wife, my son John and his wife; ask for no more. Amen." If they believe they can carry on the affairs of this republic on that basis, let us see where they will land, as a practical proposition.

If the eight men were elected in California and contributed to the Democratic majority in the House, it would result in the election of a Democratic candidate for Speaker, and that Democratic Speaker would appoint a Democratic Ways and Means Committee, and unless there is an absolute reversal of conclusion and opinion through this republic, that Democratic Ways and Means Committee would formulate revenue legislation upon lines of a tariff for revenue only, and return us to the glorious and blessed conditions of 1894, '95, '96 and '97.

On the other hand, a Republican majority elects a Republican Speaker, which results in a Republican Ways and Means Committee, and the formulation of legislation upon these lines.

Now, I do not suppose there is any Democrat who is running for Congress in this district that is so filled with the idea of his weight and influence that he thinks that eight Democrats, being a very small appendage, not to say tail, of the Democratic party could wiggle the whole Democratic party on this proposition. If you elected these Representatives they would be futile so far as being able to protect the interests of the people of California, just exactly as futile as was the distinguished Senator White, a great Democrat, and an able man, a great lawyer, as I understand, and faithful to the interests of California, and yet as I shall show you later, that great Democrat, loyal to the interests of California, was not able to save from the destruction the interests of California in the Gorman-Wilson Tariff Bill.

CHARACTERISTIC ATTITUDES OF CONGRESSMAN LITTLEFIELD.

people, the arbitrament has always been in favor of the policies of the Republican party, and the results of the republic have uniformly, universally, and invariably been in favor of that verdict, because, not only have we received the verdicts at the ballot box, but the stern, inexorable and unanswerable logic of events has thus far demonstrated the wisdom, the propriety and the necessity of these great policies.

GROVER'S OUTBREAK.

Grover Cleveland, during the last week, has emerged from the scholastic retirement in which he has, for a short time, been concealed, to declare that tariff reform is to be the battle ground of the campaign in 1904, and William Jennings Bryan has left the gods that he once followed, and is now proclaiming as a serial in the comic (?) batches and sections of his tariff reform speeches that he made when he first became a member of Congress. So this great republic, with its important question hereafter, as well as now.

THE OBJECT LESSON.

Now, we are not without an object lesson upon that question. Our Democratic friends, returned to power in 1892, enacted upon their lines tariff legislation in 1894, and during a period of four years, under a Democratic administration, our exports exceeded our imports by about seven hundred millions of dollars. In 1897 the Republican party was returned to power, and recognizing the profound disturbance that had been caused to the business conditions in this republic, the arrest of prosperity by the legislation of our friends upon the other side, a new session of Congress was called, and that Congress met, and under the lead of a distinguished man from my State, who represented the distressed condition of the Republic, Hon. Nelson Dingley Jr., of Lewiston, the Dingley Bill was drawn and enacted into law, and under it this great republic, with these vast resources, with these unlimited possibilities and with its stupendous destiny, has been living since 1897, and during that five years, instead of that bill creating a Chinese wall that shut us out from the markets of the world, we have a balance of trade in favor of this great republic in the vast sum of two billion eight hundred millions of dollars in five years' time. [Applause.] Bringing it down so we can appreciate the vastness of these figures, at the amount of a million and a half a day or a thousand dollars for every second, indicating the rate at which the gold of continental Europe and the gold of oriental countries has been pouring into the United States to pay for the vast balance of trade in our favor, and furnishing one of the great keys to the vast and welcome prosperity that blesses this country today, from one end to the other. [Applause.]

Now, more than that. This is the record of five years of Republican legislation, and the ability of the Republican party to compete in the markets of the world in the business of the world, and it is as much as the balance of trade aggregated in the whole hundred and eighty years prior to 1898. Mark that. Under five years of Republican administration, the balance upon the credit side of the ledger indicating the accumulating of wealth in the increase of the power of the great and free people, was as much as the total aggregate of a hundred and eight years preceding that time.

THE CANAL BILL.

We have as a result of the legislation of the Republican party, intended to contribute to these same results, recent enactments which concern vastly the welfare and prosperity of this magnificent part of the United States, with its limitless resources, and its great capacity for agriculture and industrial development. The Republican party has given to the country the Isthmian Canal Bill, which will, in the course of a few years' time, if the country has the proper balance to its credit on the great ledger, so that the money can be expended without embarrassing the interests of the government, give us a great waterway connecting the Atlantic with the Pacific, and giving to these shores a new method of competition as against the transcontinental railroad lines, and opening up to them another avenue for the profitable and reasonable transmission of their vast products to the eastern markets. And this is in line with the policy of the Republican party, and it is also in line with the policy of the Democratic party, that it has adopted during this very last session a comprehensive plan for irrigation of the arid lands of this and the mutual security of the West. [Applause.] In order that these resources may be developed to their highest capacity.

Now, we are asked in this campaign to reverse the policies that now obtain, and reinstate the policies that our friends upon the other side believe in voting for a Democratic candidate for Governor, for Democratic candidates for the Legislature, and for Democratic candidates for Congress. I am not here to instruct anybody how to vote, I am not here to tell anybody how to vote, although some of

There's one more thing. He can recite Kipling's "Recessional," which is one of the most difficult things to recite that was ever written—"Lest we forget."

ROUSING MEETING.

INTERESTED AUDIENCE.

Congressman Littlefield was greeted at Hazard's Pavilion by the largest gathering of the present campaign, excepting only the magnificent audience that turned out to hear Hon. George C. Pardee, Republican candidate for Governor, who spoke at the same place in September.

Over two thousand persons, nearly all voters, occupied seats in the main audience room and gallery, while several hundred were seated on the platform. Most of the ladies were on the stage, so that as the speaker glanced over the assemblage he looked into the faces of men who have the right of suffrage. That they were not dull listeners was proved time and again when Mr. Littlefield made telling points, and his speech bristled with them.

The Congressman was escorted to the Pavilion by the American Club of Pasadena, the magnificent marching organization that has done such splendid work in the present and past campaigns. One hundred members of the club, commanded by Maj. Henry Rabel, arrived by electric car at 7:30 o'clock, and a few minutes later marched to the Hollenbeck Hotel, where Mr. Littlefield was waiting in Republican headquarters with an escort committee.

Headed by Col. W. G. Schreiber and a band, with Dr. Ralph Skillien as drum major, the club proceeded down Spring street, after being reviewed by the evening's guest, and Mr. Littlefield entered a carriage with E. A. Meserve, J. W. McKinley and Bradner W. Lee. In a second carriage rode Hon. R. N. Bull, A. B. Case and R. W. Burnham. The line of march was south on Spring to Fourth street, east to Main, north to Second, west to Broadway, south to Fifth street and west to the Pavilion.

The hall was nearly full when the club marched in, with the band playing, and took the seats that had been reserved for its members in the front rows.

At Mr. Littlefield and his escort crossed the platform, there was an outburst of cheering for the speaker.

The hall had been decorated with flags, and the stage especially was gay with the bright American banner, while portraits of Dr. Pardee occupied conspicuous places.

Bradner W. Lee, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee and a member of the Republican State Committee, introduced E. A. Meserve as chairman of the meeting.

"We have come," said Mr. Meserve, "to hear a message of prosperity and promise, a lesson and a teaching, which will command the respect and consideration of every one of us, and which will tell us that on November 4 our duty is to vote for Dr. George C. Pardee for Governor of this State, and the ticket which is presented by the Republican party, from top to bottom."

Mr. Meserve introduced Mr. Littlefield as a man who had come across the plains and the mountains to discuss the important issues of the campaign.

At the Maine Congressman rose from his seat and drew his form out to its greatest height, the American Club jumped to its feet as a man, and gave him cheers, three times three. Then the audience took up the salute, and it was some seconds before the speaker could make himself heard.

It was 8:30 o'clock when Mr. Littlefield began speaking, and it was 10:30 o'clock when he ceased; yet so interesting was his address, and so strong his power of attraction, that but a few of the immense audience left the hall. References to President Roosevelt and to Dr. Pardee were greeted with intense applause. If there was any doubt about the enthusiastic support of Pardee in Los Angeles it was dispelled at every mention of his name.

When Mr. Littlefield said that President Roosevelt undoubtedly will be the Republican party's choice in 1904, the audience shouted itself hoarse.

WHAT HE SAID.

MR. LITTLEFIELD'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Littlefield spoke as follows: Mr. Chairman and fellow-citizens of California: It affords me very great pleasure to be able to stand and look into the faces of so many of the men who will be the constituents of Hon. James McLaughlin, next to be elected member of Congress. [Great applause.] And I have a peculiar pleasure because I am able as a colleague of his on the floor of the lower house, by reason of my acquaintance with him and my knowledge of the manner in which he discharges his public duties, to be able to say to this magnificent audience that he is an able, efficient, successful representative and fully protects the interests of all the people that live in this district in California. [Applause.]

I want, just for a moment, before I enter upon the discussion this evening, to render my personal compliments to the splendid marching organization that has paraded these streets, performing these magnificent and precise evolutions. It is the finest organization that I have ever seen since I reached California. [Applause.]

On the fourth day of November next the people of California will discharge a great public duty, exercise a solemn right and discharge the responsibilities of determining who will be the agents to govern the affairs of this great nation. It is a great, a powerful and a mighty nation; its resources are vast and tremendous. For a moment I propose on the outset to call attention, briefly, by a birdseye view, to the wondrous development of the great republic, in commercial, financial and industrial lines.

HOW WE GROW.

A little more than a hundred years ago there were thirteen small States, with a population of about five millions of people. Today we have forty-five States and several Territories and we occupy the whole, practically, of this hemisphere below British Columbia, and we are not only in the Occident, but the great republic's power is felt in the Orient and in the far distant lands. About $5,000,000,000 today we have nearly $100,000,000,000. We have now about 5 per cent. of the total population of the world. Then we had about 2 per cent. today we have $1200 per capita. And so vast are the resources, and so great is the capacity of this young republic, that today we produce more wheat than any other land on the earth, and 23 per cent. of the total production of the world. We produce ten times as much corn as any other land, and 72 per cent. of the total production. We produce five times as much cotton as any other country, and 75 per cent. of the total production. We produce more coal than any other country, and 81 per cent. of the total output of the world. We produce more pig iron than any other country, and 38 per cent. of the total production. We produce more copper than any other country, and 16 per cent. of the total amount produced in the world. We have more petroleum than any other land, and 49 per cent. of all that is produced anywhere. We have six times the miles of railroad that they have anywhere, and 49 per cent. of all the railroads on the earth. We have 35 per cent. of all the telegraph lines.

This birdseye view indicates the great resources, the vast possibilities and the stupendous destiny of the country in which we live.

This is a great land with great possibilities and its administrative affairs and its financial policy have been determined in times past, and will be determined in time to come by one of the other two great political organizations, the Democratic party or the Republican party, and upon the lines of the development of its industrial interests, its agricultural interests, and the expansion of its commercial interests, these two great parties are at great variance. Their policies are diametrically opposite the one to the other.

The Democratic party says that the way to raise the revenue by which to carry on the affairs of this great republic is by the imposition of a tariff upon imports for revenue only, for the purpose of raising the amount necessary to carry on our business affairs, and it takes nearly two millions or more dollars per day every one of the 365 days to carry on the affairs of this great republic; and the larger part of this vast sum always has been and probably always will be, raised by one or the other two policies that these great parties represent. Our Democratic friends say that a tariff for revenue will induce larger importations into the United States, and will increase our trade with foreign countries and will open to us the markets of the world, and thus incidentally benefit the people that live in this country, and, therefore, as they say, conserve the welfare and prosperity of all. Upon the other hand, the Republican party says that its policy of raising revenue to carry on the affairs of this great republic is to impose a tariff for revenue and in addition thereto for the protection of American labor and American industry. [Applause.]

The Republican party says that while it is raising revenue to carry on the affairs of this great republic, it will, as a part thereof, see that the wage earners in this republic shall be enabled to receive, and shall receive, by reason of the fiscal policy adopted, a higher rate of wage, be better paid, better fed, better clothed, better educated, more highly civilized and more efficient than the laborer in any other land. [Applause.] It says that its policy of raising revenue shall develop the industries and the resources of the great country in which we live. It says that the duty of any party is to raise to the people of the United States, to conserve in the first instance, their welfare, first, last and all the time, and afterward, if it may be, the welfare of people who live elsewhere. Our Democratic friends say that a tariff on the lines of protection results in the building of a wall about this great country, and we have heard a great deal in times past about this Chinese wall that divides us and separates us from the markets of the world; but the Republican party says that the market at home is the most valuable market for the American manufacturer and for the American wage earner, and that it proposes in the first instance to secure that market to ourselves.

Now, in connection with these two great policies upon which these parties are divided, and, incidentally, perhaps, I might suggest, as I go on, that these questions are not only here with us in this campaign, but they are fought out and again to be decided by the great American people. Although exception of 1892, whenever these great issues have been submitted to the arbitrament of a free and intelligent
